Course requirement

This course is designed to introduce basic reading and writing approaches to teaching elementary and secondary English learners. Participants will get to know about English reading and writing approaches. Participants will take part in the teaching activities to facilitate children and young-adults to learn English and to apply practical techniques to engage learners in learning English. This course requires participants to take part in classroom activities and demonstration. Also, opportunities for participants to practice teaching skills will be provided.

Mid exam: (a) Practice teaching a unit (assigned by the instructor) from a social studies textbook. Design a lesson plan, focusing on reading strategies and reading-writing-connection. Instruct the topic and then guide the class to do one of the activities within 6 minutes. (b) A written comprehension test based on the textbook materials and activities discussed before midterm.

Final exam: (a) Go to an elementary school to practice teaching assigned by the instructor (designing lessons and materials). (b) Report on your teaching (your teaching experience and students' learning results as well as observations of peers' instruction). Give a poster presentation.

Course description

In this course, participants are required to take part in course discussion, conduct classroom observations, and practice teaching in elementary schools. Literacy and reading strategies will be introduced. The goal of the course is to connect the university coursework to the real classroom teaching to prepare quality English teachers in Taiwan.
